

Dear Jerrold DeWease,

You might remember a recent Random Act of Kindness we presented to Cathy Heaven who's husband is critically ill with cancer. I'm on her email list and get up dates from time to time. I want to share today's. The news is very difficult, but I suggest that you read and observe her faith as she endures the pain and hardship of seeing her dear husband die. No matter your religious affiliation, you can see how faith seems to be her salvation. I'm so pleased that we could help and I know each of you will join me in prayerful thought for this family.

UPDATE #24

7 HOURS AGO

My husband is dying...my beautiful, reserved Englishman, my beloved, my friend is going to meet his Maker soon. His body is shutting down. He said Easter morning that he could feel he was moving into a place of rest and peace..so goodbyes were said. By Monday he wanted hospice care, which means we removed everything that would prolong his agony and began giving him drugs to make him comfortable and ease his struggle until it pleases our good GOD to usher him home.

His brother Gary and I are standing vigil, along with both our families. We do not know how long it will take but he is ready to go. Scripture and prayer is all he wanted when he was still awake.

Thus says the LORD, 'Let not a wise man boast of his wisdom, and let not the mighty man boast of his might, let not a rich man boast of his riches; but let him who boasts boast of this, that he understands and knows Me....' - Jeremiah 9 : 23
- 24

Paul has this highlighted in his Bible and expounded upon in the margin..going deep with GOD was his lifelong pursuit during our marriage. Knowing GOD delights in loving kindness, justice, and righteousness means I can trust Him with Paul..that He holds Paul..that He loves his servant Paul.

Be at peace, my friends. GOD has need of him..whether that means He resurrects him at this late hour to this life as he did Lazarus..or to the next life to dwell forever with Him in eternity. Either way, Paul wins..because GOD will be using him for His purposes.

My deep thinker....
